BARBED WIRE

- Cattle Fences

This can be also used as a perimeter fence around an area but has little security advantages.

A cattle fence usually consists of 5 strands barbed wire, either single or double strands. Strands vary from the application eg. cattle, sheep or goats.

Barbed wire cattle fences are known as a barrier to fence live stock animals in.

FIELD FENCE

- Cattle Fences

Field fence is a woven fence and consists of a number of horizontal and vertical smooth wire strands. Spacing of the wire generally gets wider as the fence gets higher.

The blocks ensure that small animals are kept in or out.

Different heights and block sizes are available depending on the application e.g. sheep, goats and cattle.
